

WALLACE & GROMIT WISH PASSENGERS A ‘CRACKING’ EASTER

This week, passengers and visitors at Bristol International Airport can look forward to a ‘cracking’ Easter as Wallace & Gromit make a surprise appearance at the airport terminal.

The Oscar-winning plasticine characters will be wishing Airport customers a happy Easter by handing out chocolate eggs as they set off on their journeys.

The surprise appearance is part of a year-round programme of events organised by the Grand Appeal, as the airport’s chosen ‘Charity of the Year’ for 2008.

The partnership was launched in the New Year and so far over £4,000 has been raised through customer and staff collections.

The money will go towards the Appeal’s ‘Cots for Tots’ campaign to provide life-saving cots, incubators and vital medical equipment for premature or critically-ill newborn babies being treated at the Neo-natal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) in Bristol.

Jacqui Mills, Customer Experience Manager at Bristol International comments; “This is a fun way to wish passengers a very happy Easter and as Wallace would say a really ‘cracking’ time wherever they are spending it!”
